Print Media Gains

It has been widely predicted that the print media, that is newspapers, books, magazines and the like, was doomed to fall before the onslaught of television; that the habit of reading would wither and eventually perish.

It hasn't happened. People are still reading and, in fact, a recent Gallup Poll suggests that one out of every four American adults are absorbing at least one book a month. This one in four figure represents a gain over a 1958 sampling when just a fifth of the U.S. adult public had the book-a-month habit.

What about the young people then? A survey by the Gilbert Youth Research group shows that 73 per cent of all young people between 14 and 25 years of age read one or more newspapers each day. Some 78 per cent of all adults read one or more newspapers each day.

Still on the subject of youth, the Gallup Poll notes that while newspaper reading declines in college years, with studies competing for attention, it jumps up to 82 per cent after graduation. Among young married couples, newspaper reading goes to 86 per cent.

Nobody is denying the impact of television. But there is ample reason to think that there is still a lot of room in the media for the printed word — among young people as well as adults. — Shreveport (La.) Times

Press vs. The Press

In the Department of "Every Day's Not a Clear Day on the Washington Scene," last week one of the wire services moved the following news dispatch.

Washington — The National Press Club's board of governors voted to bar the press from the club's meeting on Friday when the issue of admitting women will be voted. One of those who attended the board's meeting said the backers of closing the voting to the press argued that the women's membership issue is an 'emotional' one which should be decided behind closed doors.

So much for freedom-of-information and an open-door policy on the Potomac. None of the denizens from Washington's caves of bureaucracy would have had face to come up with that one.—Anniston (Ala.) Star

Dollar Coin to Profile Eisenhower

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The dollar coin has returned to U.S. currency with production of "cartwheels" bearing the profile of Dwight D. Eisenhower and depicting the American eagle on the moon.

Mary T. Brooks, director of the U.S. Mint, pushed the button Wednesday on a noisy stamping machine at the San Francisco Mint to start production of the first dollar coin since 1935.

The first coin off the press goes to Mamie Eisenhower, widow of the president. The second goes to her grandson, David, and the third to David's father-in-law, President Nixon.

Over the next four years, the San Francisco Mint will produce 130 million "uncirculated" Ike dollars, the first type produced. They will be sold to collectors for $3 apiece.

Production will begin in June on 20 million flawless "proof" Ike dollars—to sell for $10 apiece.

Later coins intended for general circulation, worth $1 will be minted in Philadelphia and Denver. They will be distributed to banks by fall, meeting the demands of vending machine operators for a coin to match inflation.

Requests for the collector coins will be taken beginning in July, after order forms have been distributed to all post offices. Mailed deliveries will begin in August.

The collector coins will contain 40 per cent silver and 60 per cent copper.

Jobless Space Engineers Poses Problem

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon meets today with Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson, science adviser Edward David and 16 others on the problem of unemployed engineers and scientists—many from the ailing aerospace industries.

Representatives of aerospace-defense firms, academic leaders and heads of professional engineering societies were to take part in the conference at the Western White House.

By Labor Department estimate, some 65,000 engineers and scientists were unemployed prior to the vote by Congress to halt funding for the supersonic transport—an action almost certain to increase the number of jobless.

The administration already has tapped some funds from the Department of Housing and Urban Development to retain some of the unemployed for work in public service projects.

Prior to the conference, Nixon expressed hope that more could be done.

The chief executive, here for a 10-day stay, has been putting heavy emphasis on West Coast problems.

Earlier, he had saluted indirectly the stricken California movie industry by conferring the Medal of Freedom—the nation's highest civilian award—on producer Samuel Goldwyn. Then Wednesday he announced that six miles of Pacific beachfront within sight of his luxurious home here was being transferred from the Camp Pendleton Marine Base to the state, which will dedicate part of it Saturday as a public park.

GOP League Plans Meet

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Dr. Howard Gillett Jr. of Washington D.C. will deliver the keynote address at this year's Young Republican League of Arkansas convention May 8-9 at Hot Springs.

Gillett, 29, is the national president of the Ripon Society, a liberal Republican organization.

Old Guard in Charge, Bernard Says

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The chairman of the state Republican party says the resignations of several state department heads is evidence that Gov. Dale Bumpers has "succumbed to the legislative political Old Guards."

Charles T. Bernard of Earle made the statement Thursday. He pointed to the departure of such department heads as Correction Commissioner C. Robert Sarver, State Police Director Ralph Scott and state Revenue Commissioner Len Blaylock.

He called the situation "most alarming" and said legislators now appeared to be "calling the shots on personnel" in a manner that reminded him of the era of former Gov. Orval E. Faubus.

Scott, Sarver and Blaylock were appointed by or under former Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller. Bernard commented Bumpers for his effectiveness in getting his programs through the legislature, but he added that "no plan or program is better than the effectiveness and efficiency used to implement such measures. No plan or program is better than the quality of the people involved in leadership."

Tells About Voyage Across the Atlantic

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) — The first sailing experience of J. Finis Plunkett, 65, was a memorable one—a trip across the Atlantic Ocean in a 30-foot yacht.

Plunkett returned to Fort Smith Thursday after completing the trip with his son Robert, 26, a Navy veteran.

"It was the greatest—quite an adventure," said the elder Plunkett.

The Plunketts left Fort Smith last May 8 to pick up their boat at Plymouth, England. After touring England for three weeks, the Plunketts picked up their boat but then had to return the vessel for a paint job.

Shortly after the voyage began, a gale (which Plunkett later learned packed winds up to 62 miles an hour) broke the mast of the boat. With the aid of their diesel engine, the Plunketts reached the coast of Africa. However, facilities for repairing the yacht were unavailable and the hearty twosome headed for the Canary Islands. Fifty miles from Las Palmas in the Canary Islands, the boat's fuel tank sprung a leak and the vessel was powerless.

Plunkett and his son rigged the boom for the mast and used the foresail to replace the main. They finally limped into Las Palmas where they ordered an earlier mast from England. The mast arrived Jan. 25 and the postal strike in England began the following day.

Finally, the yacht crossed the Atlantic Ocean and dropped anchor 3,000 miles away at St. Thomas in Virgin Islands. From there, the elder Plunkett returned home while his son remained behind to sell the yacht.

Allowance for Deputy Is Refused

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas House refused again Thursday to concur in a Senate amendment that would increase the allowance for deputy hired in the Faulkner County sheriff's office from $30,000 to $40,000.

The amendment was attached in the Senate by Sen. Guy H. "Mutt" Jones of Conway to the bill setting the salaries and expense allowances of the state's sheriffs.

The second refusal of the House to agree to the amendment threatened to tie up the bill.

Rep. A. J. Troxell of Greenbrier, who represents Faulkner County, asked for House rejection of Jones' proposal. The vote on the amendment was 49-26, with 51 votes needed.

Arkansans With Majority

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arkansans' four Congressmen voted with the majority Thursday when the House passed 293-99 a two-year extension of the Selective Service Act.

Congressmen If He Hadn't Become a Army Dislikes Deepen Mood Big Star Eastwood May Public Rally for Pullout Have Been a Lawyer for Calley

By HAL BOYLE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The deepening mood in the House for a total U.S. pullout from Vietnam by the end of the year is picking up some Republican support.

Eleven GOP congressmen signed a letter sent Friday to all House members urging a 1971 withdrawal, saying the nation has lived up to its commitment to Saigon in full.

A letter making the same point but under Democratic sponsorship was sent five days ago and has obtained 40 signatures, but the GOP document adds a new element to the anti-war sentiment.

Until Friday Rep. Paul N. McCloskey of California was the only Republican who had expressed public opposition to President Nixon's refusal to set a Dec. 31, 1971, deadline.

McCloskey indicated he might challenge Nixon in the presidential primaries next year if the war has not ended by then.

While crediting Nixon with substantially reducing the American force level in Vietnam and acknowledging joint Congressional responsibility for the war, the GOP letter said nevertheless:

"Mounting citizen concern about our role in the tragic Indochina war has dramatically swelled the ranks of those Americans favoring an early withdrawal of U.S. Military forces.

"No longer can there be any doubt that an overwhelming majority want this war to end as soon as possible. Congress has the unique responsibility to channel that feeling into responsible legislative action to end the war."

The addition of the Republican congressmen to the list seeking a withdrawal deadline under lines anew and increasing dissatisfaction with U.S. presence in Vietnam.

NEW YORK (AP) — If he hadn't become one of filmdom's top 10 box-office stars, Clint Eastwood says he would enjoy being a criminal lawyer.

"An attorney for the defense, not a prosecutor," he added. "It sounds more noble."

As a youth the 6-foot-4-inch actor was something of a drifter and a loner—he worked as a lumberjack and a steel mill laborer—and today, despite a crinkly grin that makes him look disarmingly boyish, he still has an air of aloofness about him.

He gives the impression of a man in charge of his own destiny. His mind moves before his mouth does. Asked a question, he stares a while through green eyes that hold a muzzle quality, before answering it with words slow and few.

His saga is familiar. After appearing in a dozen or more films in which it was hard to tell him from the scenery, Clint starred for more than seven years in "Rawhide," a television series.

He then took his saddle sores to Italy, where he earned a fortune in three low-budgeted horse operas that made him an international star and whose profits won the awe of Hollywood.

Now he has his own company, Malpaso Productions, which can pay him $1 million or more a picture. It is as much for his business acumen as for his acting ability that the industry envies him.

Eastwood is a thoughtful man, made so perhaps by his early years of solitary self-reliance and independence.

Life to him, he said, "means many things—freedom, tranquility, creativity and activity."

It is to get away from the stultifying effects of the industry that Clint bought a refuge at Carmel, Calif., for himself, his wife Maggie, a former model, and their small son, Kyle Clinton.

The actor's latest film is "The Beguiled," a Civil War drama. He also recently directed "Play Misty for Me," in which he plays a popular disc jockey besieged by a sexy young fan.

"I fired myself three times in that one," he remarked. "I think it's better to do one or the other—act or direct. To do both is insanity, unless you are merely appearing in a cameo role."

What is his goal?

"Maybe it's a swear word today—but just to entertain. I don't feel I have any major social message to impart. But if there is an underlying message in the film, that's fine. It's the difference between the saber and the foil."

Would Limit Wage, Price Controls

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In another policy rift with the Nixon administration, Federal Reserve Board Chairman and former White House economic advisor Arthur F. Burns has called for a six-month limit on the President's power to control wages and prices.

Burns' stand, made known Wednesday to the Senate Banking Committee, widened the gap between the seven-member board and the administration over the course of economic policy, this time over the methods that should be used to control inflation.

The Fed, as the board is called, is an independent agency controlling the federal banking system and thus the nation's money and credit supply.

"This is a tremendously broad power," Burns said of a bill to extend the President's standby authority to control wages and prices for another two years. "It would give the President virtually dictatorial powers."

He favored a House-passed amendment that slaps a six-month limit on wage and price controls when and if they are formally implemented.

But a Treasury Department undersecretary, Charles E. Walker, followed Burns to the stand and urged removal of the six-month limit.

He said the President needed the controls without the restriction because he may use them on specific industries, such as he did in the construction industry.

He said Nixon would never impose general wage-and-price controls without coming to Congress for a mandate.

The standby controls expire June 1. When Congress approved them last year, Nixon said he didn't want them and never planned to use them. This year, however, the administration changed its mind.

Nixon invoked the standby authority in signing an executive order setting up wage stabilization machinery in the construction industry, but the plan, largely self-regulating, stops short of full-scale controls.

Burns has called on Nixon to establish a Wage and Price Review Board, with power to investigate, not enforce, inflationary wage and price decisions in the economy. Nixon has rejected that approach.

But the President has adopted many of Burns' ideas for controlling inflation since Burns outlined them in a speech last fall.

The main policy difference now centers around Nixon's desire for the Fed to pursue more vigorous easier-money policies to expand the economy. Burns says there is plenty of money on hand in the nation's banks. If the economy needs stimulating, he has said, tax relief appears the most promising way to do it.

Health Care Hikes Cost to Some

WASHINGTON (AP) — Economy-inspired revisions of the government health care programs would increase costs to some aged and low income persons under a tentative agreement reached by drafters of new welfare legislation.

The proposed increases are based on Nixon administration recommendations designed to curb the soaring costs of Medicare, the Social Security-linked program for those 65 and older, and Medicaid, the state-federal plan for persons close to or on welfare.

If the new provisions remain in a pending bill, they would hit elderly persons faced with medium-length stays in the hospital and some of the poor or near-poor families who now get free health services.

The committee is scheduled to reconsider its entire draft later this month, and some sources predicted a strong drive to known out the cost-sharing provisions in the health sections.

Under existing Medicare law, the elderly patient pays the cost of his first day's hospitalization, estimated at $60, then incurs no more hospital costs until the 60th day. For the remaining 30 days' hospitalization allowed him for a single spell of illness, he is charged one quarter the cost.

Pedestrian Is Killed

SPRINGDALE, Ark. (AP) — State Police said David R. Townsend, 27, of near Bentonville, was killed Thursday night as he walked along Arkansas 64 four miles west of Tontitown (Washington County).

Officials said Vernon Lee Conklin, 18, of Springdale, was unable to avoid hitting Townsend because of an oncoming car.

Amish, School Issue Going to High Court

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The state of Wisconsin has gone to the Supreme Court with an appeal pitting the religious freedom of the Amish against a state's authority to require school attendance.

However the dispute ends, the ruling will have enormous import for the 50,000 Amish in 20 states as well as for the authority of all the states to compel attendance in schools.

The Amish, descendants of 18th century Swiss Anabaptists, reject the technology and sophistication of modern society. They generally believe an eighth grade education, in their own schools, is enough for their young people.

In Wisconsin, as in many states, children are required to go to school until the age of 16. Last January, the state supreme court ruled 6 to 1 that the law could not be applied to the Amish because it would violate their religious freedom.

Appealing that decision late Thursday to the U.S. Supreme Court Wisconsin Atty. Gen., Robert W. Warren said it uproots the modern concept that government has a responsibility to educate children and endangers compulsory attendance laws everywhere.

Warren reminded the court that in outlawing racial segregation in the public schools the justices unanimously said "it is doubtful that any child may reasonably be expected to succeed in life if he is denied the opportunity of an education."

The Wisconsin official also cited a 1944 Supreme Court decision that Massachusetts was not interfering with religious freedom when it prohibited a 9-year-old Jehovah's Witness from soliciting for the sect's literature.

Public outpourings of support for Lt. William L. Calley Jr. has continued but the Army and Chief of Staff Gen. William C. Westmoreland have defended the prosecution and conviction of the soldier for his role in the My Lai massacre of 1968.

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace met with Calley at Ft. Benning, Ga., and later attended a rally with Georgia Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox at nearby Columbus. Wallace said he believes "President Nixon is going to do the right thing and ... grant clemency Lt. Calley."

Calley, convicted of murdering 22 civilians and sentenced to life imprisonment, was not permitted to join the 3,000 people at the rally. He remained under guard in his Ft. Benning apartment.

He was released from the post stockade Thursday night following an order from President Nixon that the soldier be freed pending appeal of his conviction.

In New York, the American Civil Liberties Union issued a statement supporting the release, saying it was based on the "entirely sound principle that a man should not be punished while his case is being reviewed."

Former U.S. Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark urged Nixon to act with caution concerning Calley and not to grant executive clemency because of the "emotion of the moment."

Clark referred to the continuing torrent of petitions, telegrams, letters, telephone calls, notices of resignations from draft boards and other demonstrations in support of Calley. The public reaction began Monday, immediately after the guilty verdict was announced, and swelled throughout the week.

Communications received at the Western White House in San Clemente, Calif., were reportedly running 100 to 1 in favor of clemency for Calley. Under the Constitution, the President may pardon anyone convicted of a federal offense other than civil contempt.

Westmoreland, however, told a news conference in Houston, Tex. "I feel no guilt, not in the least. It is an absurd allegation." The Army chief of staff, who commanded U.S. troops in Vietnam at the time of the massacre, said, "it was clearly known by our troops in Vietnam that they were to avoid civilian casualties at all costs."

"My orders were that all atrocities would be reported and investigated according to the rules of the Geneva Convention, and it is our obligation to follow through and punish those atrocities."

The Army issued a "white paper" on the Calley trial saying it had "a moral and legal obligation to adopt a continuing policy of investigating fully all substantive allegations of violations of the laws of war involving American personnel."

Scholarships Given for ROTC

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John Paul Hammerschmidt, R-Ark., announced Thursday that 11 Arkansans had received ROTC scholarships.

The scholarships cover four years of tuition, books, instructional fees and $50 a month living expenses. After graduation, the 11 will become second lieutenants in the Army.

Awarded the scholarships were William Alltland, Gentry; David Barnard, Van Buren; Garland Berry, Bearden; John Berry, Mena; Terrell Bishop Jr., Russellville; David Chambers, Crossett; Dwight Johnson, Scranton; James Morris, Lincoln; William Ridlon, North Little Rock; David Thomas, Fordyce; and Steve Vaughn, Mammoth Spring.

Easter Ways

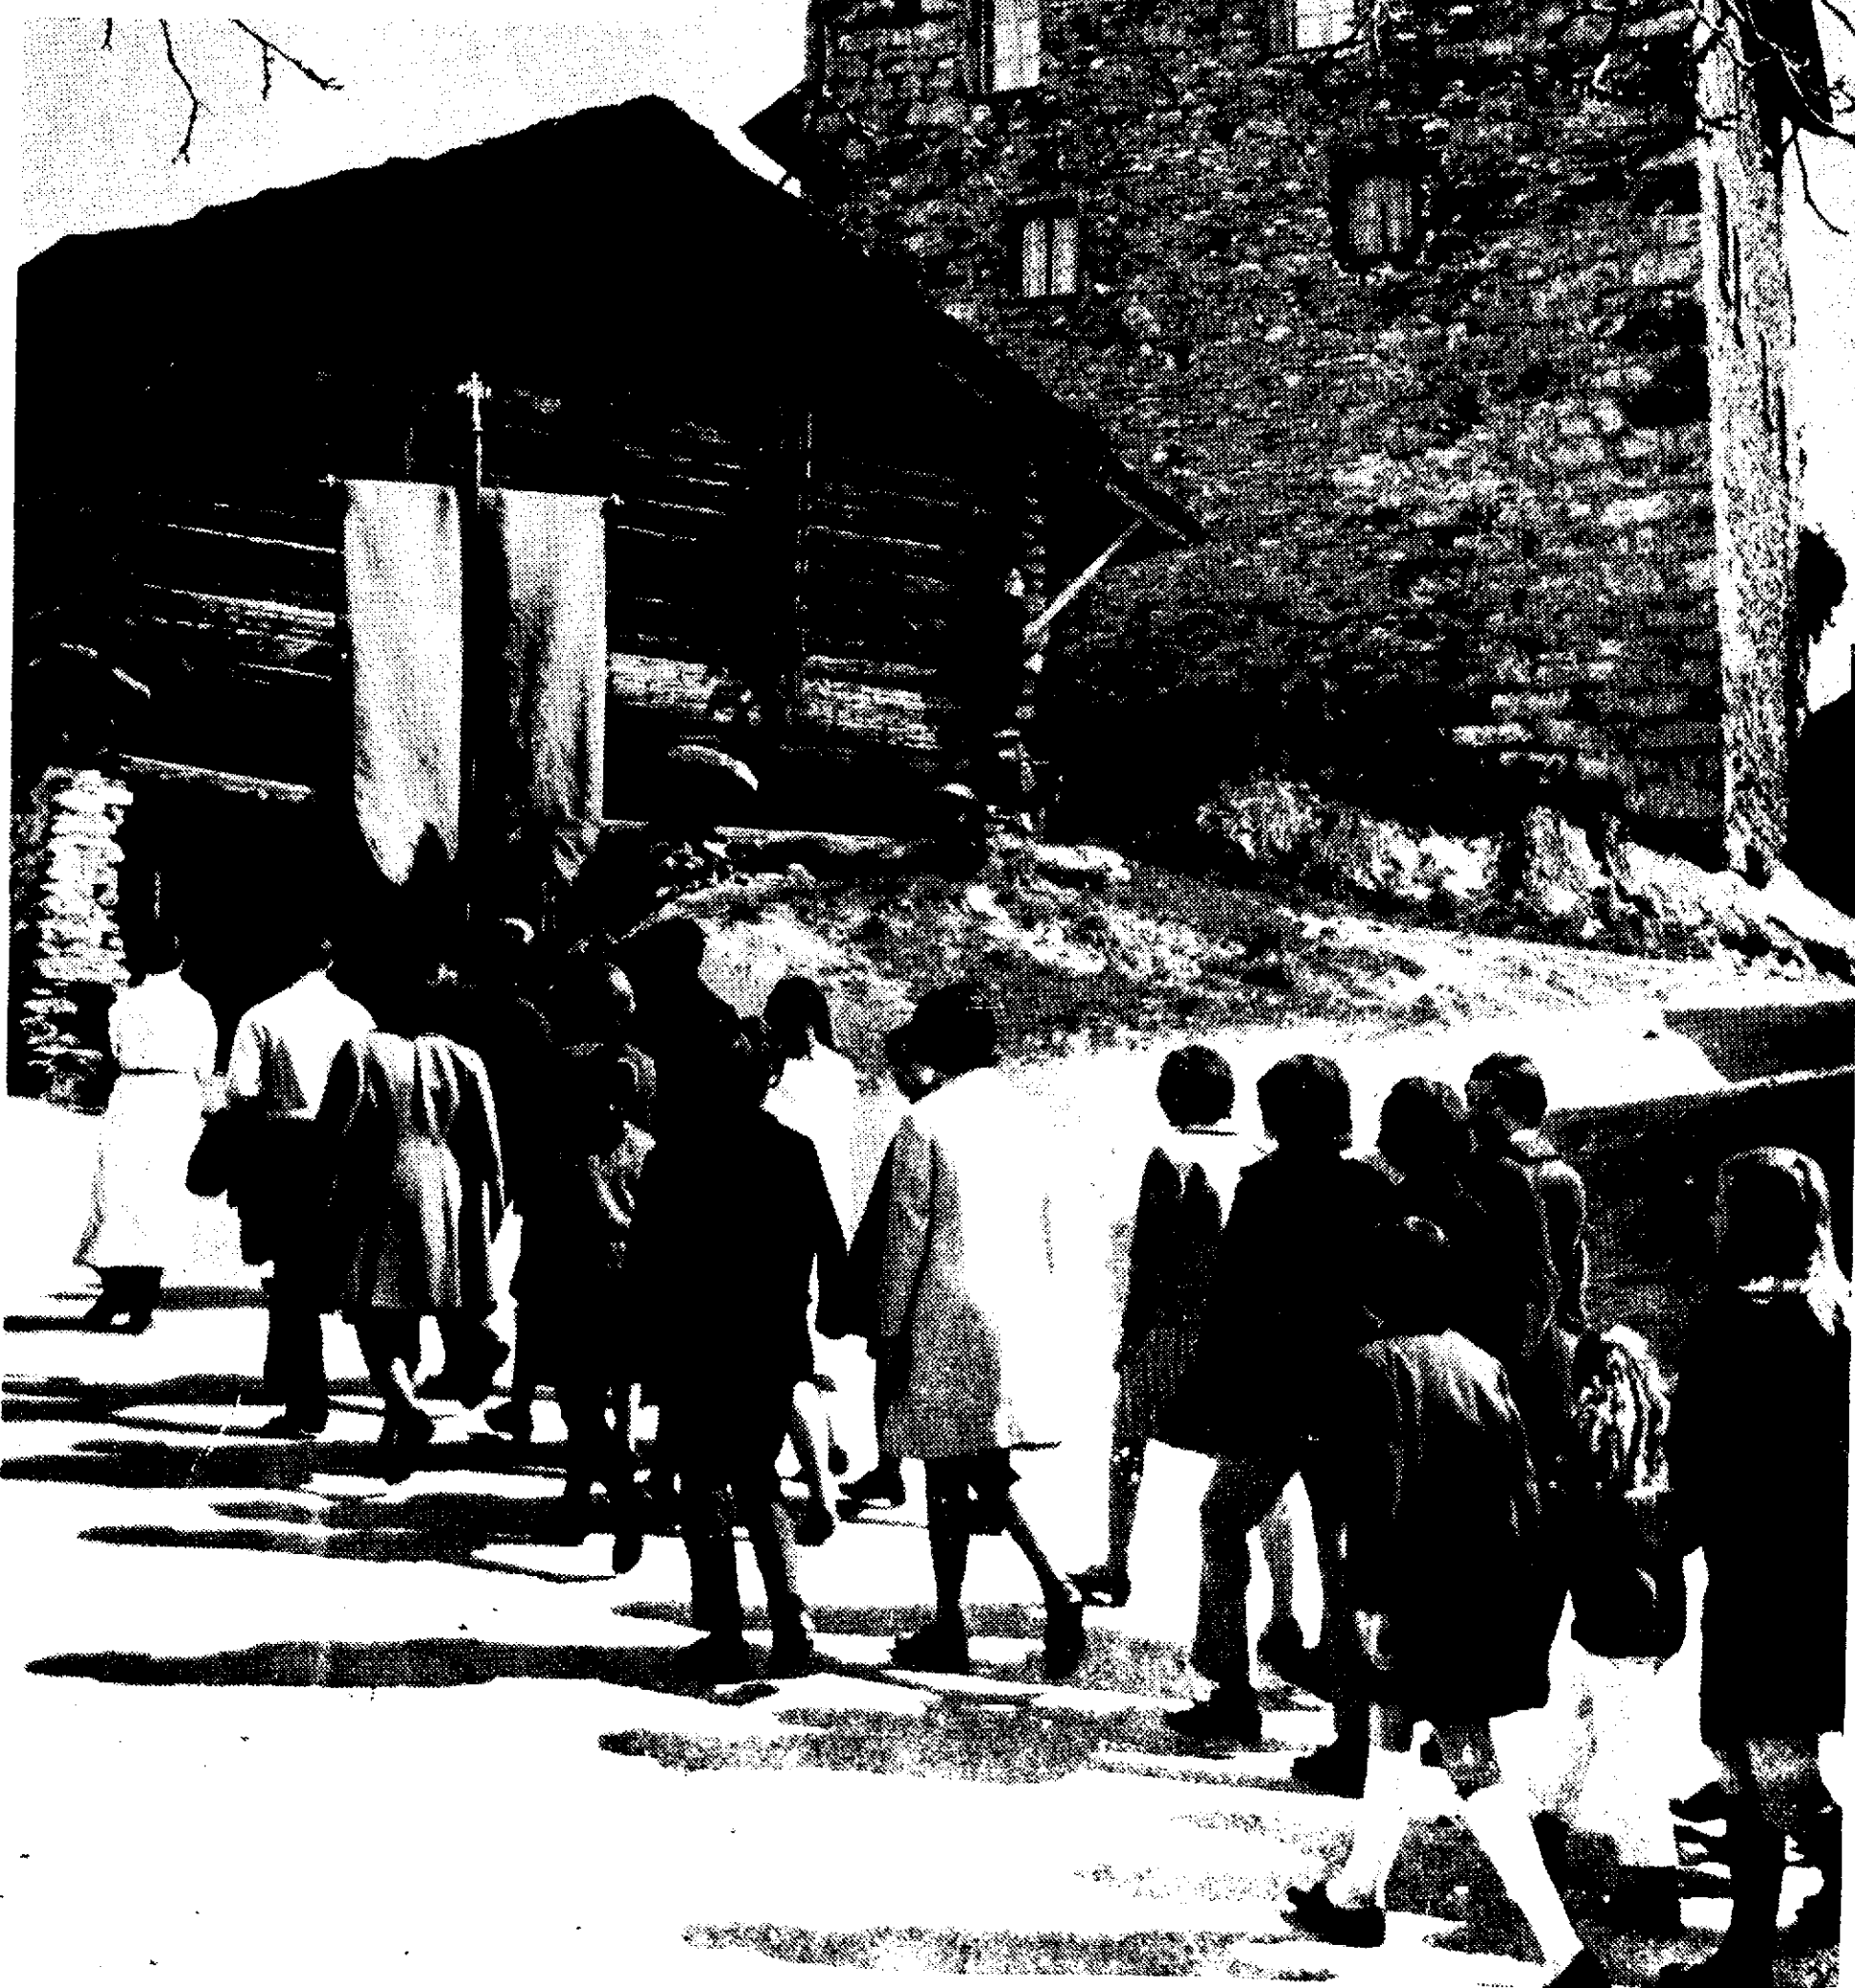

The beauty of Easter traditions lies very often in their simplicity. There are many ways of observing Easter, but those which have survived longest and have become the strongest traditions seem to be those which have the most direct personal meaning, and those in which the celebrants participate rather than merely watch. In them, the way of hailing Easter is a natural part of one's way of life.

In Switzerland, there are customs that are repeated in varying forms throughout the country. Another custom belongs, perhaps, to one tiny village which performs its own ritual in its own way. There are many customs involving eggs, for example: games and sports, in which everyone can join, in which the hardness of eggs or the skill of competitors is tested. And there is a village like Grimisuat, perched above the Rhone valley, which has its simple procession after mass on Easter Monday, followed by the distribution of loaves of bread. This is Grimisuat's way of expressing thanksgiving for the year that has passed and prayers for the year to come.

Public Works Issue Heads Into Battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats are on a collision course with the Nixon administration over a move to pump $2 billion into the nation's economy through an accelerated public works program.

The issue should come to a head in the House soon after Congress returns April 19 from its Easter recess.

House Democrats strongly back the idea of a big accelerated public works program, patterned after a similar one set up in 1962.

President Nixon is opposed to the idea, preferring to rely on his revenue-sharing program to improve economic growth.

Legislation to set up the program recently was approved by the 37-member House Public Works Committee with the support of half of the 14 Republican members. The other Republicans opposed it.

Speaker Carl Albert and Democratic Leader Hale Boggs had earlier endorsed the proposal—putting the party leadership squarely behind it.

The bill would authorize $2 billion in federal appropriations for immediate use on public works projects to relieve unem-

Arkla Contracts Are Needed, Firms Insist

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Industrial customers of Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co. warned Thursday that setting aside long-term contracts with Arkla might halt industrial development in the state.

In testimony filed with the state Public Service commission, the industrial customers also attacked the validity of Arkla cost estimates and said the long-term contracts with Arkla were essential for the operation of many industrial plants.

R. S. Matthews of Ponca City, Okla., director of Continental Oil Co.'s chemicals division, said that if the PSC should set aside the industrial contracts industry "would only be driven further to look elsewhere for a more favorable regulatory and industrial climate."

He said, however, that if the contracts are reaffirmed, "there would be substantial encouragement to the industrial climate and we would have basis for confidence in the continuity of supply and price provided in our contracts."

The PSC has ordered Arkla and its industrial customers to show why the long-term contract contracts should not be set aside.

ployment in distressed areas. Funds would be funneled to redevelopment areas and economic development centers as set up under the 1965 Economic Development act and also to areas where the unemployment rate is 6 percent or more.

Generally, the federal government would pay 80 percent, with state and local governments footing the rest of a project cost. If ceilings on taxes and bond issues prevent local funding, a federal grant of 100 percent could be made.

The committee said there is a backlog of $6 billion in local projects—such as hospitals, health centers, and water and sewer facilities—awaiting federal funds and another $3 billion backlog of federal projects which could be processed quickly.

Recognizing that the program "is not a panacea for all of our economic ills," the committee majority urged passage "so as to put people to work immediately."

PARIS—(NEA)—A cruise is a cruise is a cruise, but it was up to the French to combine an Event, a Man and a Boat for the first cruise of its kind.

The Event was the introduction of a "slimming cruise," never before attempted in this now-so-popular form of vacation.

The Man in charge was well-known French chef, Raymond Oliver, who, for the occasion, worked out a low-calorie diet with superb haute cuisine dishes.

The Boat was the luxury liner "Mermoz" which provided ultimate comfort and the maximum in exotic relaxation.

Oliver, high priest of French cuisine, is ready to gamble his reputation on the 20-day cruise. He is out to prove that a "mousseline of lobster," plus veal scallops in cream sauce and a French pastry dessert can be as good for anyone's health as a dish of raw shredded carrots and unimagination. Unseasoned grilled or boiled meat or fish.

He is the owner of a three-star restaurant in Paris, Le Grand Vefour, known to international gourmets. He is a familiar figure on French television, has written some 25 cookbooks, given cooking lessons on European and American TV besides acting as food consultant for trans-European dining cars and airlines. Oliver's latest brain child, this "diet cruise" is for gourmets of both sexes, conscious of the necessity of fitness, who watch their weight but above all appreciate good food.

"Most people connect privation with any diet," chief Oliver explains. "But my menus for this cruise are inspired by French cuisine at its best. And they do not

War Vet, 86,
Likes to Walk

Dear Dr. Lamb—Your column, "Walking Is Help in Losing Weight," intrigued me. I am a veteran of many wars, totally disabled, almost blind, cannot drive, but I walk five miles a day.

When spring, I walk as I did in England 70 years ago, in Japan in 1908, in Hong Kong and in China. Your name, Lawrence, brings memories. I knew Lawrence of Arabia, and at 86 I salute you.

Many years ago I walked for a interesting letter. Despite some of your problems, your letter makes me think again of just what old age can mean. Your interest and activity points out how much fun the later years can be. Many people lead very active lives in later years. As a matter of fact, oldest-lived American, Sylvester Magee, was well at the age of 129 years. He also fathered a child at age 109.

I adopted this and a few years later in Nova Scotia I chopped down trees for winter fuel. The 42 times stayed with me and 15 years later, a doctor in New York advocated this and it became known as Fletcherizing. Today I still masticate my food.

My diet may interest you. For 30 years in the Far East islands, I lived as the natives lived. Today, I live as they lived. Fish, fowl, vegetables of variety, little meat, lamb

Recently, a friend of mine, Dr. Crawford Adams of Nashville, reminded me of Thomas Parr who died in England in 1635 when he was 152 years old. Parr fell in love again at the age of 102, fathered a child and at age 120 he married for a second time. He still labored vigorously past the age of 130. He lived a simple life and worked regularly. In his last years, because of the fame his age brought him, he was given a greater abundance exceed 1,200 calories a day."

Two typical Oliver menus are: Lunch—500 calories: Mousseline of lobster, corn cake, small veal scallops with cream, Parmesan cheese mousseline and Jacob's fingers (a fluffy pastry). Dinner—350 calories: cream of chicken soup, cold turkey galantine, fennel with melted butter, pineapple ice cream, a whisky sour and a glass of wine.

The first "health cruise" sailed in mid-March, leaving Miami, Fla., through to the Caribbean Sea to Marseilles, with 600 passengers.

Oliver guarantees that all can lose from 10 to 12 pounds with a minimum of effort.

Twenty-five medical specialists were aboard. The cruise was available for consultations free of charge.

Oliver has experimented personally with the two-week health diet he planned for the cruise and declares he is slimmer and fitter than ever before. He has arranged for a tailor to adjust the clothes of the cruisers who lose excess pounds.

A comforting thought is that part of the master's disinclination scheme is to encourage passengers to drink wine rather than hard liquor. There are bar cards which are punched at every whisky, "so that they don't lose count and cheat on themselves," Oliver says.

In his low-calorie dishes Oliver uses soy for sauces, low-fat oils for mayonnaise and low-calorie vegetables. Still, he guarantees that the delicious taste of French cuisine will remain.

no reason they can't avail themselves of the opportunity to attend numerous conferences on subjects such as how to order a meal in a restaurant.

For the last 22 years Oliver has officiated in his temple of gastronomy, Le Grand Vefour. The great traditions of haute cuisine in its 18th century setting are maintained. Brass nameplates mark the favorite tables of such personalities as Napoleon, Churchill and Princess Margaret.

Like most chefs Oliver's favorite dishes are the simple old standbys of the French kitchen, perfectly cooked, of course. He is especially partial to "pot au feu" (the New England boiled dinner) as cooked by his wife with the right cut of beef, a calf's foot, herbs, leeks, carrots and onions, all simmered gently for a couple hours.

Thinks Diseases to Disappear

BOSTON (AP) — A leading British medical officer predicts communicable diseases will disappear within 30 years.

Dr. Henry Yellowlees, deputy chief medical officer of the British Department of Health and Social Security, made the forecast in a talk before the 50th New England Hospital Assembly.

Dr. Yellowlees predicted that by the 1980s bacterial infections will no longer be a danger, vaccines will control viral infections, heart disease will increasingly yield to prevention and medication, and cancer research will find ways to curb cell dysfunction.

Hippies Find Farm and Neighbors

By JIM BENNETT

Associated Press Writer
ASHLAND CITY, Tenn. (AP) — One neighboring farmer gave the hippies a grinding stone so they could sharpen knives and axes. Another gave lessons on driving a tractor. A third told the group how to dig post holes.

The 250 hippies were new arrivals in Cheatham County and the farmers were just being neighborly as a heavy stream of local residents went up the dusty road to the group's 650-acre farm.

After a month-long journey from San Francisco, the hippies in a 63-vehicle caravan of remodeled buses, trucks and cars finally reached their farm Sunday.

"I don't think we'll have any trouble," said Stephen Gaskin, the 35-year-old leader of the group. "We don't intimidate anyone or come on that way. I teach that you reap what you sow."

The neighbors who dropped by Tuesday were quick to lend a hand, although some were dismayed at learning the hippies don't plan to use insecticides on their crops.

The hippies explained that they will use only organic fertilizers, no chemicals, and plan to sell their crops to a health food store in nearby Nashville.

Laced with small streams and tiber stands, the farm nestled in a mountain hollow cost $150,000. Gaskin said they put up $2,000 raised by passing the hat, a method they'll try again to collect the $44,000 that the Ashland City Bank wants added to the down payment.

Gaskin picked up most of his followers while speaking at college campuses, he said.

The farm site was chosen, he said, because Nashville has good communications and publishing facilities and he liked the way he was treated when he stopped there once.

The hippies have already started planting their crops and are living in the vehicles, generally four to six together.

Jane, Leah, Matthew and William, all in their early 20s, live in an old Cadillac that has been enlarged to make room for beds, kitchen and toilet facilities.

"We're not married," Jane said, as she talked about her beliefs.

"God is here, He's everything," she said. "I don't think of God as being in heaven. That's too removed from here and now."

The group believes that man has too long dominated the animal kingdom so they don't eat meat or anything that comes from animals such as eggs or milk.

Unleavened whole wheat bread, sesame seeds, salt, water, fruits and vegetables make up their diet. Those who tire of drinking water sometimes make a soybean milk.

As they were greeted their neighbors, one girl won approving nods when she mentioned she didn't drink or smoke. It was only Monday that the community reversed the school board's long-standing policy barring senior proms because many considered dancing sacrilegious.

HELEN HELP US!

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT!

This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help Us!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush-off.

Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED for it, care of Helen Help Us! this newspaper.

"NICE GUY" IS A DANGEROUS GUY

Dear Helen: We all know him too well — the "nice guy" who goes along with what he thinks is most popular so people will like him. He doesn't have opinions strong enough to stand up against criticism. He's the perennial "yes man."

Here's my definition of a nice guy. How many fit that image?

A "nice guy" keeps silent about deeper involvements into Indochina because "we've always had war" and "those guys must know what they're doing." Besides, it isn't HIS neck — he's over draft age, and has a defense plant job.

A nice guy shrugs off My Lai and remains silent on the war in general.

He protects his only interest (himself) and has never made history. He seldom has the guts to speak out, fearing he might offend somebody (who could help him later on if he remains ingratiating).

Throughout history, he has never invented anything, led a revolution, or challenged the status quo.

A nice guy needs security from the constant winning of smiles, more handshakes and a paternal slap on the back. He feels desperately that people must "love" him. He needs garnished compliments and flowery praise.

He may have daydreams about being a "man," but if it means speaking out, he soon begins to squeak like a mouse.

The nice guy is apt to say "Some of my best friends are Negroes. . ." but puts his house up for sale if one moves into the neighborhood.

When minority groups ask for something more, he's all sympathy — until they come too close.

The nice guy will never get fired from his job. He doesn't have the courage to stand up and be counted for any ideal. To do so may hurt his "don't rock the boat" image.

Often the nice guy survives only through the props of ego building from his patient wife or family, who know when to apply soft soap.

A nice guy joins Women's Lib for protection.

He will be paraded through a corridor of lilies at his death, with a smile on his face, his only mission in life accomplished: that everyone sing out his praises and cast their eyes adoringly on — the loved one.

(Could be they're relieved to be done with him.)

A nice guy is a neuter, sexless creature with a charming personality. He is too "nice" to cry out against the inhumanity of war, racism or injustice. Behind his charm lies a character nurtured with so much saccharine, it has turned him into a docile heap of rubble.

A nice guy gains his goal of collective love at the expense of the world which has paid dearly for his needs, while real men have struggled and died.

A "nice guy" is the opposite of a "man."

And the world is all too full of nice guys! —LYNN

Dear Lynn:

You omitted one thing: A "nice guy" is terribly, terribly dull! —H.

"Well," North said resignedly, "I tried."

"What did you try?" asked South.

"I tried to get the hand into no-trump, but it was no use."

"Of course not," replied South. "I had a good hand with 100 honors. With any one of three finesses right I would have made game."

North didn't continue the discussion because he knew that South should have made his contract in spite of all three finesses being wrong.

West's queen of hearts held the first trick and his jack the second. On the third South ruffed East's 10. South drew trumps, played his ace of diamonds and led a diamond to dummy's jack. East won with the queen and played out his ace of hearts.

Later on South had to lose the club finesse and was one down.

There was nothing South could do at the start. He should ruff the third heart, just as he did and proceed to draw trumps with three leads. He should be careful to win the third and last trump in dummy.

His next play should be to lead dummy's king of hearts. East would cover with the ace and South should discard a club. This would give the defense their third trick, but it would be their last. East would have to play either a diamond or a club. The diamond lead would give him a chance to get rid of another club on a diamond later on; the club lead would be right up to dummy's ace-queen.

Plenty for Soup Bones

CHICAGO (AP) — A woman passer-by offered to help Gerome Grossman, 26, a truck driver for a local dog food company, to unsnarl the traffic jam he had created.

The woman offered to take some of the 7,000 pounds of beef bones that had spilled from the truck.

She told workers trying to clean up the pavement that she wanted the bones for soup.

"Lady," Grossman explained, "you can have them all!"

Swoboda Hits Homer for New Owners

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ron Swoboda hit a home run Friday in a strange uniform and Paul Blair hit one from a strange side of the plate while Frank Howard hit another routine 460-footer.

Swoboda, the ex-New York Met, drilled his first circuit shot in his new Montreal getup, one of four Expo homers in an 18-5 rout of Pittsburgh's 'B' team. Rusty Staub hit two homers and John Boccabella the other as the Expos battered Bob Moose for nine runs in seven innings.

Swoboda also hit a 380-foot sacrifice fly that observers said would have been long gone in Montreal's Jarry Park.

Meanwhile, Swoboda's ex-Met teammates were battered by the Baltimore Orioles 12-2. The Birds tagged relievers Jim McAndrew, Charlie Williams and Ron Taylor for 10 runs in the last three innings with Blair, now a switch hitter, getting his first as a left-handed batter, a three-run shot over the center field fence in the ninth. Merv Rettenmund homered off loser Tom Seaver and Clay Dalrymple also connected for Baltimore.

Howard, who hit two monstrous homers Thursday, un-loaded over a 70-foot-high fence 380 feet from the plate but the Atlanta Braves outslugged Washington 10-6. Mike Epstein and Dick Billings also homered for the Senators while Sonny Jackson paced the Braves' 17-hit attack with four safeties.

Pittsburgh's main squad got five-hit pitching from Nelson Briles, Bob Veale and Jim Nelson and blanked the Cincinnati Reds 12-0. Richie Hebner hit a pair of homers and drove in six runs while Vic Davalillo and Bob Robertson also homered.

The Chicago White Sox ripped Ferguson Jenkins of the crosstown Cubs for nine runs and 10 hits in six innings and snapped the Cubs' seven-game winning streak 9-2.

Rick Monday hit his first home run ever off Sam McDowell as the Oakland A's downed the Cleveland southpaw 5-2. The Philadelphia Phillies down their Eugene farm team 4-2 and enfranisco Giants banged out 2 hits, including a homer, two doubles, and a single by Ken Anderson, cruised the University of Santa Clara 12-4.

In a unique three-way round-robin in the Astrodome, the Houston Astros beat the New York Yankees 2-1, the Minnesota Twins bopped the Yanks 4-1 and the Astros shaded the Twins 5-3. That left the Astros plus three, the Twins plus one and the Yankees minus four runs, that is.

Jim Spencer drove in two runs in the bottom of the 11th inning to give the California Angels a 4-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers. The Angels trailed 3-2 going into their half of the inning but Dodger pitcher Pete Mikkelsen walked one man and Ken McMullen singled with two out setting the scene for Spencer.

President Harry Truman labeled his administration the "Fair Deal" on Jan. 5, 1949, in the course of delivering his message on the state of the union to Congress.

No Takers for High Scoring Deaf Player

DANVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Ernie Epps averaged 37.7 points a game this season—tops in Kentucky prep ranks—yet no college basketball scouts are knocking at his door.

The handsome, 18-year-old blond is going to college, however, and continue to do the thing he loves most—play basketball.

Ernie, who also has been a high jumper and a starting quarterback for the past two seasons, attends the Kentucky School for the Deaf.

This fall he plans to enter Gallaudet College in Washington, D.C., only liberal arts college for the deaf in the world.

Totally deaf since birth, he is a top-notch student and president of his class.

Hitting 56 per cent of his field goal attempts and grabbing 20 rebounds a game, was the No. 1 player on his team.

"Ernie could play college ball easily," says Edward Hyden, his coach. "He's smart and he's easy to coach."

"But, it would be just about impossible for Ernie to play ball at a regular college and get his education, too," Hyden said.

"Ernie and his parents (Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Epps of Benton, Ky.) feel the same way. He wants to get an education."

"A few schools expressed interest in him," said Hyden, naming Tennessee, New York University, Maryland, Oklahoma, Memphis State and Ohio University.

"But he's going to attend Gallaudet," Hyden said. "It has a full-fledged athletic program and Ernie probably will get a scholarship on his grades."

Oddsmakers Still Like Red Machine

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The Big Red Machine swings back into gear next week with one vital part missing and a couple of others in possible disrepair.

But anybody who thinks about consigning Cincinnati's National League pennant defenders to the 1971 scrap heap would be wise to consult the oddsmakers.

Despite the loss of sparkplug Bobby Tolan in a winter basketball mishap, the slow recovery of 20-game winner Jim Merritt from a lingering arm ailment and the salary disputes and injuries that slowed the Reds' spring training pace, they are favored to repeat as NL West Division champs.

With center fielder Tolan, who batted .316 and led the league with 57 stolen bases, out indefinitely following surgery to repair a severed Achilles tendon, versatile Pete Rose will switch from right to center.

Hal McRae and Bernie Carbo, two of the Reds' prize 1970 rookies, will flank Rose, who signed his second $100,000-plus contract after a stubborn, two-week holdout.

The remainder of last year's wrecking crew, led by matchless catcher Johnny Bench, third baseman Tony Perez and first baseman Lee May, is intact.

But the pitching staff, depleted by injuries late last season and shelved by Baltimore in the World Series, could continue to pose problems.

Merritt (popped elbow), rookie flash Wayne Simpson (torn shoulder muscle) and Jim McGlothlin (bruised toe), among other injuries were the 1970 casualties. And 18-game winner Gary Nolan, injury-free throughout the year, had a previous history of arm troubles.

Simpson, 14-3 with a 3.02 earned run average, went on the shelf July 31. McGlothlin, 14-10, hobbled through the second half after winning 11 of his first 15 starts. Merritt, 20-12, was winless after Aug. 26.

Fortunately for the Reds, veteran Tony Cloninger stepped into the breach to post seven of his nine victories after the All-Star break.

And the relief crops of Wayne Granger, 6-5 with a league-leading 35 saves, Clay Carroll, 9-4, 16 saves, and rookie fireballer Don Gullett, 5-2, 76 strikeouts in 78 innings, held firm.

Meanwhile, Pat Osburn and Ross Grimsley, a pair of 21-year-old left-handers who aren't on the 40-man roster, have impressed in exhibition play to the point that one or both could make the club.

No one expects the Reds' awesome attack to sputter, even if Bench can't top the 1970 figures that made him the league's Most Valuable Player—45 home runs, 148 runs batted in (both major league highs) and a .293 average.

Perez was close behind Bench last year with 40 homers, 129 RBIs and a .317 batting mark.

May cracked 34 homers, knocked in 94 runs and batted .253.

Rose, topping the 200-hit level for the fifth straight year, had a .316 average and 15 homers. Carbo hit .310 with 21 homers and McRae .248 with eight homers while platooning in left field.

Tommy Helms, the acrobatic little second baseman who describes himself as a "hub cap" in the Machine, figures to boost his .237 average.

Woody Woodward, .223, will start at shortstop. Dave Concepcion, .260, another 1970 rookie who shared short with Woodward and Darrel Cheney, .232, has been out with a broken thumb.

Jimmy Stewart, Ty Cline, Angel Bravo and Pat Corrales are the returning shock troops and pinch-hit specialist Willie Smith has been added in a trade with the Chicago Cubs.

Bookmaking Evidence in Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — You dial the bookmaker's number. One ring, then four or five more. No answer. That's unusual. Normally, someone answers on the first ring and no later than the second.

You try another number. Still no answer.

Finally, you call a friend. "Can you get a bet down?"

"No way."

During the past few days the situation has been the same throughout Pulaski County.

"I've never seen anything like it," said one veteran horseplayer. "Not in all my years."

"There's been no crackdown as such," said Capt. W. A. Tudor, commander of the Criminal Investigation Division of the State Police. "If it appears to be a crackdown it's just that we've started getting enough information to obtain warrants."

"Our investigation has been a steady, continuous operation," Tudor said. "The evidence has been harder to gather recently. Bookmakers have not operated as freely this year as they did last year and last year they were not as free as they were the year before. I believe the situation is tighter now than it has ever been."

The recent jury conviction of three persons on the felony charge of keeping a gambling house may be one reason the bookies are running scared.

After reaching the verdict, the jury recommended a three-year sentence for each of the men. Court observers said it was the first time in memory that a jury had returned a felony conviction of operating a gambling house in Pulaski County.

Many times a persons suspected of bookmaking is charged with a misdemeanor, fined and released.

"If the evidence warrants, we'll charge them with operating a gambling house," Tudor said. "All we can do is present evidence to the prosecutor or the court."

"Our sole job is to simply gather as much evidence as we can," he said. "The prosecutor says go or no go depending on his thinking. Then, we go to court and obtain search warrants. If the evidence is not sufficient, the charge will be reduced or dismissed."

"There is a difference between a matter of knowing someone is booking and proving it," he said. "We father as many facts as we can from as many sources as we can. If we don't have sufficient evidence, we just keep plugging along."

Tudor says one of the most common methods for gaining evidence is to have a person place bets while authorities listen on an extension phone.

"Bookmakers are vulnerable to the point where telephone numbers are vulnerable," he said. "A bookmaker has to circulate his number if he wants people to bet."

"When the number is circulated, our people place bets with the bookmaker," Tudor said. "The bookmakers either pay off or take the money for the bet."

They may only be exhibition games but that doesn't mean baseball players don't throw themselves into their work. St. Louis catcher Ted Simmons pounces on the New York Mets' Mike Jorgenson (left). Makoto Tsuchida of the Tokyo Yomiuri Giants bowls over Kansas City catcher John Martinez (center). And Chicago White Sox third baseman Bill Melton hops on St. Louis' Joe Hague during a pickoff play that didn't work.

PROSPECTUS: Angels did surprisingly well last year in Lefty Philip's first full season as manager, and they strengthened themselves considerably with some off-season trades. Tony Conigliaro and Ken Berry join Alex Johnson in an outfield that ranks among the league's best. Pitching is sound and this may be the year Angels give Disneyland a run as top attraction in Anaheim.

California Angels
American League—West

PITCHING—Clyde Wright won 22 games last year and had ERA of 2.83. Andy Messersmith, despite arm troubles, worked 195 innings and had 11-10 record. Tom Murphy was 16-13 in 227 innings and Rudy May worked 209 and ended 7-13. Jim Maloney, from Reds, may fit in somewhere. Bullpen lost Ken Tatum to Red Sox, but Eddie Fisher and Dave LaRoche still around. Rating: B

CATCHING—Garry Moses, over from Boston, will take over as catcher. He hit .263 last season for Red Sox. Rating: B

INFIELD—Jim Spencer, at first, among league's least-recognized pros. He hit .274 with 12 homers and 68 RBIs last year. Sandy Alomar (.251, 35 stolen bases) stays at second, Jim Fregosi (.278, 22 homers) at short and Ken McMullen (14 homers, 64 RBIs) at third. Rating: A-

OUTFIELD—Johnson won A.L. batting crown with .328 average, also added 14 homers and 86 RBIs. All silliness aside, he is fine hitter. Conigliaro hit 36 home runs and drove in 116 for Red Sox last season and should prosper in free California spirit. Berry, from White Sox, is one of game's best defensive outfielders and hit .276 last season. Rating: A

ROOKIES TO WATCH—Pitchers Steve Kealy and Harvey Shank will get chances in bullpen. Outfielder Mike Floyd may also stick.

Predicted Finish: 2nd in West

SHAVING STROKES

by Frank Beard

A Useful Cliche

This is my first column of a new golf season, and if there is one time-honored piece of counsel I can give you as you get your clubs out of mothballs it is that you should practice more this season. If, that is, you want to lower your handicap from last year.

I know it's a cliché to tell you to practice, but there just isn't any other way to improve. Have you ever hit 500 balls a week? The pros, most of them, hit more than that, and they're at the top of the game.

Everyone can stand to practice more. As a good example, I give you Jack Nicklaus, who has already won a major championship this winter—the PGA, which was held first instead of last for a change. Jack has been a great player for 10 years. People think I wrote in a book called "Pro" that Jack was washed up. At first, Jack thought so too, until I had a chance to explain what I had said in context.

I said he could be the finest player in history, but he wasn't living up to his potential. I admitted that even so he is a super player; his record proves that. But Jack wasn't working at his game the way he could have been. He would take time off from the tour to go home, but instead of practicing he was out fishing, or just relaxing.

This year, going into the PGA Championship, he spent two solid weeks at home practicing, and he won the tournament. It certainly underlines my belief that to put it the way Dow Finsterer hind the plate, the one position where the Orioles might need help.

Also around are outfielder Curt Motton and infielder Bob Grich, who swung away at a .383 clip with Rochester.

It's doubtful, however, that they can break in with an infield of Powell, second baseman Dave Johnson, shortstop Mark Belanger and Brooks Robinson and an outfield of Buford, Blair and Frank Robinson, along with Rettenmund.

If there's any question about the Orioles it's about their pitching. Despite three 20-game winners, only Palmer's earned run average was below 3.00. Palmer had a 2.71 with McNally 3.22 and Cuellar 3.47. Dobson's addition should help.

The bullpen appears strong with Pete Richert coming off a year in which he had a 1.96 ERA.

All that is very likely the reason Weaver says flatly: "I don't see any holes." Maybe it's because there aren't any.

PGA Revising Some of the Regulations

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Embarrassed PGA officials are hastily rewriting some published regulation that would indicate, at least one of the surface, that three of pro golf's highest honors have been awarded erroneously in recent years.

Involved are the make-up of this country's Ryder Cup team, the awarding of the coveted Vardon Trophy for the lowest stroke average, and the determination of the season's leading money winner, considered by the pros as possibly the highest honor of them all.

The 1971 Tour Book, published by the Tournament Players Division of the PGA indicates that performances and money won in the Hawaiian and Bahama Islands Opens do not count.

They are included in the computations. Officials quickly pointed out that the published regulations have been superceded by official action and that it's simply a matter of having overlooked rewriting the published material, written in its present language before the Hawaiian and Bahama Island events became part of the regular American tour.

It wouldn't have made any difference in either the money winning champions or Vardon Trophy champions of the last two years, Frank Beard Money and Dave Hill Vardon in 1969, and Lee Trevino, who took both, in 1970. All would have won regardless of the computation.

But the current Ryder Cup standings could be affected. Tom Shaw, winner of the Hawaiian Open, and Doug Sanders, winner of the Bahama Islands event, both are listed high on the Ryder Cup standings. They would not be if the published regulations were followed.

Several youngsters whose talents would indicate they could play regularly for other clubs. Included among those is catcher John Oates, back after a year's military duty to challenge light-hitting Elrod Hendricks and Andy Etchebarren be-
